NOTE: microfiche page #100 (digital image #102) of the 1901 New York State birth index was unfortunately corrupted and unable to be opened on the portable hard drive we received from the New York State Department of Health. We have asked the Department to re-scan the page and send us a new copy of the file. We will update this file with the new version when we eventually receive it, which could take several months.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office of National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 85 and over has increased by 0.5 million in the same period.

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for ageing, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles: older people should be able to live independently, safely and comfortably; older people should be able to participate in the community; and older people should be able to access the services they need.

The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives for the government to achieve by the year 2010. These include: to reduce the number of older people who are in care homes; to increase the number of older people who are able to live independently; to improve the quality of life of older people; and to ensure that older people have access to the services they need. The strategy is a key document for the government and for the health service, and it sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people.

The strategy is based on the following principles: older people should be able to live independently, safely and comfortably; older people should be able to participate in the community; and older people should be able to access the services they need. The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives for the government to achieve by the year 2010. These include: to reduce the number of older people who are in care homes; to increase the number of older people who are able to live independently; to improve the quality of life of older people; and to ensure that older people have access to the services they need.

The strategy is a key document for the government and for the health service, and it sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people. the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1 million (Office for National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 85 and over has increased by 300,000 in the same period.

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a strategy for the future of health care for older people. This strategy is based on the principle that older people should be able to live in their own homes for as long as possible, and that health care should be provided in a way that is appropriate to their needs. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live in their own homes for as long as possible.
- Health care should be provided in a way that is appropriate to the needs of older people.
- Older people should be able to access the services they need when they need them.
- Older people should be able to participate in decisions about their care.
- Older people should be able to live a full and active life.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 12.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased from 4.5 million to 6.5 million (Office of National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the community. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out a vision for the future of older people's services. The strategy is based on the following principles: older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; older people should be able to participate in the community; older people should be able to access the services they need; and older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment.

The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives for the future of older people's services. These include: to improve the quality of care for older people; to increase the number of people who are able to live independently in their own homes; to increase the number of people who are able to participate in the community; to increase the number of people who are able to access the services they need; and to increase the number of people who are able to live in a safe and secure environment.

The strategy also sets out a number of key actions for the future of older people's services. These include: to improve the quality of care for older people; to increase the number of people who are able to live independently in their own homes; to increase the number of people who are able to participate in the community; to increase the number of people who are able to access the services they need; and to increase the number of people who are able to live in a safe and secure environment.
